ANDOVER NEWS.

For other Andover News, see Pages 4 and 8

Miss Jennie Barrows very fittingly ended her successful course of dancing lessons by giving a party to the members of the class in the Town Hall, last evening. Several invited guests from out-of-town were present, and the evening was very pleasantly spent by all, in going through the various dances.

The Bible Class at Christ Church will be omitted to-morrow afternoon.

A barge for those singers who are to take part in "Queen Esther," at Lawrence, next Monday evening, will leave at 6.45 p.m. Mr. Macomber hopes there will be a large number. Besides those mentioned elsewhere, there will be singers from Exeter, and the part of Haman will be taken by A. D. Huntoon, formerly of the Boston Ideal Opera Company.

The last meeting of the Pro Bono Club for the present season, was held last evening, at the residence of Rev. F. A. Wilson, there being a large attendance. The subject for the evening was "Music," and the program consisted mainly of essays on the history of the several different instruments, and also selections on the same, all of which went to make up a very enjoyable entertainment. Games and songs concluded the very pleasant evening. The meetings will be resumed in the Fall.

Memorial Day Flowers.

The decorating committee of Post 99 desire to call special attention to the need of flowers for Memorial Day. They should be left at the Town Hall as early as possible on that morning, and not later than 7.30 o'clock. Any flowers designed for a special use should be so marked, and the committee will see that any directions are carefully attended to.

Base Ball.

The Punchard School nine is making a glorious record for itself. Last Friday afternoon they defeated the Lawrence High School team 7 to 6, on the Niotus grounds. At the same place, Monday afternoon, they gained a victory over a picked team from Lawrence, the score being 9 to 8.

The Y.M.T.A. of Lawrence were beaten by the Phillips team last Saturday afternoon, 9 to 3. Case was very effective for Phillips, and was finely supported by Brown, the Lawrence boys making only two hits.

The Tufts College nine came here Monday afternoon with a grim determination to defeat the Phillips team, but for a second time they had to succumb to the superior playing of the Andover ball tossers. Burrington, who formerly pitched for Tufts, and was effective against Andover teams, was obtained for the occasion; but this made no difference, for the Phillipsians made eleven runs while Tufts was getting seven.

The Niotus Club had a walk-over with the Morton Street nine, Saturday afternoon, the final score being 10 to 2.

The game between the Phillips team and the Matthews of Lowell, Wednesday afternoon resulted in favor of the latter 8 to 7. Andover fared badly at the hands of the Lowell umpires, the Matthews gaining several runs by their poor work. The game was exciting although there was considerable "kicking."

The Boston Blues play with Phillips to-morrow afternoon.

The following is the schedule for the games of the Merrimack Valley Association for the present season.

May 31.	Lawrence Canoe Club at Reading.
June 7.	Niotus at Lawrence.

Education and Manual Labor.

The current number of the New England Farmer contains interviews with several prominent educators, answering the following letter:

There is a feeling among many agricultural thinkers and writers that the public school system of to-day is creating a false standard in the minds of the youth by developing an aversion to manual labor, and educating them away from occupations which necessitate it, thereby unduly increasing the ranks of middle men and non-producers and filling our cities with lawyers, brokers, speculators, clerks, book-keepers, etc., in excess of the needs of business. In your experience does the modern public school system tend to belittle the dignity of honest manual labor directed by bright active brains. If our system is to be criticised from this standpoint can you very briefly suggest a remedy?

From the answers we make these extracts:

PRESIDENT CAPEN OF TUFTS COLLEGE.
I do not think the public school system has any tendency to create false notions as to the dignity of labor in the minds of our youth. I think it has decidedly the opposite effect. Of course it is but natural that a certain percentage of the brighter boys and girls should have ambitions awakened within them for the higher education. This is as it should be, even though some should mistake their ability and calling.

SUPE. OF SPRINGFIELD SCHOOLS.
The public schools do not, in my judgment create in the minds of pupils an aversion to manual labor or a false conception of the dignity of such labor; but they fail to eradicate such aversion and to correct such false conception, created by parents as a rule, who are employed in manual labor, and whose ambition is to place the children above the necessity of manual labor. The children of the laboring classes get their false conception of the dignity of manual labor from their parents, and the schools ought to correct the conception by giving pupils manual as well as intellectual training, thus enabling them to associate the two as equally dignified.

PRINCIPAL OF GORHAM NORMAL SCHOOL.
Do the schools educate the pupils away from common manual work? If the question means do they do so intentionally and directly the answer must be an emphatic no. If the question means do they do this unintentionally and indirectly the answer must be an emphatic yes. How explain this apparent paradox. Education does not make a man lazy. The educated boy or girl, man or woman, has no more disinclination to manual work than the ignorant, nay all experience shows that he has less objection to it as such, is less likely to be a loafer, a good for naught. He in common with the ignorant man will find something better or easier or more profitable to do if he can, and his education simply gives him a better chance than his ignorant brother to find the something better. The healthy human enjoys activity, enjoys work to such a degree of intensity and continuance as is sufficient for needed and enjoyable exercise. All manual work beyond this is disagreeable. The compulsion to work beyond this pleasurable amount whether it comes from his needs crying out for food, clothing, shelter, welfare and support of loved ones or from the lash of a master makes him a slave. Human nature rebels against this slavery, desires to escape it and therefore seeks other kinds of work less wearisome.

All manual work is unpleasant when the body is not in perfect health. Nearly all bodies inherit disease from ancestry, so manual work becomes a burden, and each desires to be free from it.

Superior power of thought and superior skill have always got the best places in the social arrangement. Every one notices this. Each man wants for himself the best place, the place which gives the most return for the least work, or a place among that class of workers who get the highest good with the least manual work, or whose work is rather held by the people to be a little more honorable than manual work. The reasons impel every one to get out of manual work. The schools help the pupils out of the ranks of mere manual workers by giving them greater thought power and greater facility for acquiring skill. So they indirectly educate the pupils away from manual work. Brains do the same. A man utterly ignorant of book knowledge, if he have superior thought power or a natural tendency to acquire skill faster than his fellows, gets away shortly from mere manual work.

Can the schools do better for the pupils than now? Most assuredly. How? 1st, By introducing so much of industrial or manual training as has distinctively intellectual value. 2d, By making the end of all school study and instruction, development, growth, physical, intellectual and moral activity, instead of mere cramming of memory.

PROMINENT MAINE EDUCATOR.
There is an aversion among people, especially laboring people, for the occupation in which they are engaged. There is too much work, too much confinement, or too much of something else they don't like. The result is children grow up with a prejudice against the trade of the father—in fact, as already intimated, are trained up to dislike it. The farmer's boy leaves the farm for the city, the merchant's son shuns the shop and is sent to college, and so on. A crowd of country boys and girls are flocking to the cities seeking fortunes, which many of them seem to have left behind.

The country schools give little, if any, manual training, and there is really very little need of it, for as a rule the farmer's boy is of necessity a mechanic. The schools, however, are not doing enough in teaching the natural sciences in a popular form, especially the rural schools, and perhaps they never will. In the present condition of society there are certain things the farmer's children, and for that matter all school children, should be taught. Physics, botany, mineralogy, chemistry, zoology, and physiology are each important, and when properly taught they are found in some form to have important relations to the affairs of human life. The difficulty in the way of such instruction is two-fold and may never be entirely obviated, though we hope there may be an improvement in the future. The teachers are few in number who can do this class of work by oral exercises, and there are no text books at the present time sufficiently simple in character that treat the subjects in elementary form.

There is a general remedy that would settle many of these difficulties. Let every man teach his children the trade he follows himself, for he is the most proficient; and under no circumstances should a dislike for the parents' vocation be countenanced. The father's duty is to teach his son where he can do it the best. If the son is trained by the father to be a good blacksmith, should circumstances in after life call him to the desk or counter he will be all the more efficient there for the training of the shop, for a trade well learned is vastly better for an occupation than no trade.

I have often regretted the existence in society of a popular aversion to farming, and to other manual occupations. I do not know the remedy though I do have some idea of the cause. Those who are familiar with the various occupations of this country know there is no class of laborers more independent as a rule than the farmers. They receive orders from no exacting employer, they produce more than they consume, they are exempt from the debilitating influence of close confinement and are permitted to receive as a reward for their labor the full enjoyment of homes in which may abound all the luxuries the farmer's skill may be able to produce from his land. The land owner is a better citizen than the tenant, for he knows the laws are for his protection and happiness. The annual visits of thousands of weary, unnerved denizens of our over-crowded cities to the open air of the country in search of what the city does not give, reminds us that there is no place where man may enjoy more, and for that matter achieve greater success, than on a well managed farm.

Schools of Wyoming.

The people of the west from the cattle kings to the granger who lives in a dug-out on a quarter section of land, have a just pride in their country, their town, and last but by no means least, in their schools.

The west is peculiarly fortunate in this respect for she has taken advantage of all that has been found best in the public school system and she is not hampered by the prejudices and traditions of older communities. It is often surprising to the traveller from the east to be told that yonder rude log cabin is the "deestric" school. But if he enter he will doubtless be further surprised to find modern appliances of every sort, maps, charts, desks, and in the teacher's chair men and women of common sense and ability. We are able to secure competent teachers trained in eastern normal schools on account principally of our excellent climate, partly, no doubt, on account of the estimation in which the teachers are held by all our people. The teacher, if she be the right person in the right place, has, I believe, as much or even more influence for good than ministers of the Gospel. She enters more into the humdrum daily life of the people than he. The cowboys are anxious to be in the good graces of the teachers while to the "preachers" they apply the doctrine of the laissez aller and laissez faire.

The governmental machinery of our schools consists of a Territorial Superintendent, County Superintendents and a School Board of three members for each district. It is interesting to notice that, here, where women have the same franchise as men, six out of ten County Superintendents are women. They must, by law, visit every school in their counties twice in each term. For this they receive $300 and expenses per annum. The Superintendent of the County in which I reside is a lady competent by practical experience and zealous to raise the standards of instruction in our public schools.

In this Converse County, which is one of the smaller counties of the territory, being only 102 miles long with an average width of 64 miles with a population of between 4000 and 5000 there are about 400 school children and 23 schools: of these 4 are town schools with terms of three and six months. The County spends annually about $25,000 for the support of these schools. Teachers are paid $60 in the towns, and $45 per month in the country.

In spite of excellent instruction the children are not yet up to the standard of eastern schools; chiefly because in the eastern towns and cities there is a literate atmosphere while here the schools are but oases in a desert of illustrations. When school closes the children must farm or herd cattle from dewy morn till dusky eve, and in consequence books and reading are laid away. Yet their is perceptible progress.

Our Census of Manufactures.

On the 2d day of June the work of collecting statistics of manufactures for the report of the Eleventh Census will be inaugurated throughout the entire country. The value of this report must depend wholly upon the accuracy and thoroughness with which manufacturers answer the questions propounded.

The personal interests of every manufacturer are involved in the character of the report on Manufactures. It will be quoted for the next ten years as the official announcement of the exact industrial condition of the county, and will be the basis for any future legislation that may be enacted in regard to the wants of our people, whether engaged in agricultural or mechanical pursuits. Therefore it is of vital importance to each manufacturer that an accurate report shall be made.

The Superintendent of Census has taken every possible precaution in the preliminary work to make this census complete and satisfactory, and the earnest co-operation of those engaged in productive industry is all that is now necessary to secure valuable results.

Every manufacturer should bear in mind that his answers to the questions relating to his business are held strictly confidential, are not disclosed to any competitor or to other persons, and are not used by the government as predicate for the purposes of taxation or license, or in any way to adversely affect his individual business. This assurance is printed on each schedule over the signature of the Superintendent of Census.

The expert Special Agent in charge of this branch of census work, Mr. Frank R. Williams, has personally visited the principal manufacturing centres and consulted representative manufacturers, the publishers of trade journals, and practical business men generally, for the purpose of ascertaining the proper scope of the inquiry for each branch of manufacture. The questions contained in the census schedules are those suggested by the manufacturers and other persons most interested in the progress of the country, and cover ground absolutely essential to the proper presentation of its industrial conditions and resources.

Past Memorial Days.

From the records of Memorial Day in this town, furnished us by Ballard Holt, we take the following facts which may be of interest to our readers, as the time for the observance of this day draws near:

The first celebration of Memorial Day in Andover was held on May 30, 1868. The services in honor of our patriotic dead on Saturday, on which the day fell in '68, were a very impromptu affair, planned by the teachers and pupils of Abbot Academy and seconded by the students of the theological Seminary and Phillips Academy, and they were quite a success.

The services, which were held in the Chapel of the Theological Seminary, consisted of the singing of national songs, prayer by Prof. Thayer who was chaplain of the 40th Mass. Volunteers, and reading of patriotic selections of poetry by Prof. J. W. Churchill. A procession of between four and five hundred was formed headed by twelve or fifteen students of the Seminary and Academy who had served in the war, Leverett Bradley, Jr., of the Academy, who belonged to the 1st Mass. Heavy Artillery, took the lead, carrying the flag presented to the Andover company by the students of Phillips Academy. The Stars and Stripes were borne by John P. Studley of the Academy, who was a member of the 20th Mass. Cavalry.

The procession visited the Chapel, South, and Episcopal cemeteries, scattering flowers upon the graves of all buried there who were known to have borne arms in defense of our country. As the procession marched down School Street the teachers and pupils of Abbot Academy joined it. Owing to the lateness of the hour and the distance of the other cemeteries they were not visited. No oration was given that year.

On May 22, 1869, a meeting was held in the Town Hall, E. K. Jenkins being chosen chairman and J. Warren Berry, secretary. The following ladies were chosen a committee on floral decorations: From the South Church, Mrs. Robert Callahan; Episcopal Church, Mrs. Samuel Raymond; Baptist Church, Mrs. Jos. A. Abbott; Chapel Church, Mrs. W. F. Draper; Ballardvale Church, Mrs. Isaac O. Blunt; West Parish Church, Mrs. Geo. Russell, Miss Annie L. Smith; Catholic Church, Miss Rebecca Steen; Abbot Academy, Miss Philena McKeen.

A procession was formed near the West Parish Church, marching to the cemetery where the graves were decorated. Later the procession formed at the Town Hall, marching to the Chapel, South, Episcopal and Catholic cemeteries. On the route it was joined by the students of the Theological Seminary, Phillips Academy, and the Children of the Public Schools.

The number of graves decorated in the various cemeteries was as follows: South 19, West 19, Catholic 9, Episcopal 7, Chapel 3. As Memorial Day came on Sunday that year, it was observed on Saturday the 29th and again there was no oration. In 1870 the day began to be observed more as it is at the present time, with an oration in the Town Hall besides the other exercises. There follows a list of the orators from that time up to the present:

1870 addressed by Mr. E. A. Dunning; 1871, Mr. George A. Scott; 1872, Mr. Joel Seymour; 1873, Maj. Frank Davis, singing by Band of Hope; 1874, Rev. Selah Merrill; 1875, Rev. Thomas D. Christie; 1876, Rev. Malcolm Douglass; 1877, Gen. Erastus Blakeslee; 1878, Gen. Hazard Stevens; 1879, Rev. T. J. B. House; 1880, Mr. William S. Hubbell; 1881, Col. George A. Bruce; 1882, Col. Carroll D. Wright; 1883, Hon. Fitz J. Babson; 1884, Rev. Willard Spaulding; 1885, Rev. Leverett Bradley; 1886, Rev. Henry E. Mott; 1887, Rev. Clark Carter; 1888, Col. Sumner Carruth; 1889, Col. Daniel Hall.

A Mexican shepherd made a bet with his employer that his dog would stay alone on the ranch for five days, taking the sheep out to pasture in the morning and penning them at night. The dog was instructed by his master, plenty of meat was hung up within reach, the shepherd went off, the dog faithfully discharged his duties, and the bet was won.

Congressman Cannon says that the sections of the McKinley bill in relation to sugar will effect a saving of two cents and four mills on every pound of sugar used, which would be equivalent to about one dollar per year for every man, woman and child in this country.

At a children's party in New York the table was entirely strewn with cabbage leaves, on which were mechanical rabbits of every imaginable kind, some playing the drum, some tambourines, while some sprang from boxes, and others wheeled perambulators. The little people were delighted.

Gilbert and Sullivan are said to be bitter enemies now. Sir Arthur declares himself thoroughly disgusted with his former partner's ungentlemanly conduct, and he will hereafter co-operate with George R. Simms. Gilbert has signed a partnership with Alfred Cellier.

Surgeon T. H. Parke, who was with Stanley in his last African expedition, vaccinated 40 native bearers with the party. An epidemic of small-pox breaking out, 38 of the party passed quite unscathed, while the unvaccinated natives were dying like sheep around them; the other two, who showed imperfect marks, had slight attacks, from which they recovered unharmed.

A few days since a gang of workmen were put to work on a railroad near the residence of a lady, who was curious to know their nationality. A bright thought struck her. She gathered twigs of white lilac and sent her little boy to distribute them among the workmen at noon. She watched the result. Many of them put their flowers in their hats, while others laid them near their dinner pails. The decorated men were Italians.

In surveying the Grand Canon of the Colorado for a railroad, Engineer Stanton and party ran a line across a natural bench of white marble that extends for twenty miles, and is wide enough for a four-track railroad. Mr. Stanton says there is gold enough in the placers to more than pay for building the road from Denver to the Pacific Ocean, while in the Gunnison there is more good anthracite coal than there is in the whole State of Pennsylvania.

This year is the 200th anniversary of the invention of the improved tobacco pipe—the bowl, the tube and the mouth-piece. Up to the year 1690 the only medium of enjoying the fragrant weed was by means of a cylindrical instrument fashioned from the crude clay, and smelling of the earth earthy. The inventor of the present combination pipe was a physician, Dr. Vilarius of Vienna. The first tobacco pipe manufactory was established in 1690.

The 88th anniversary of the founding of the East Greenwich Academy will be celebrated by a reunion of former students on Thursday, June 19. At 10.15 A.M. literary exercises, Rev. S. F. Upham, D.D., of Drew Theological Seminary, the orator; Mrs. M. S. Case, of Highland Park, Conn., the poetess, and Col. J. Albert Monroe of New London, Conn., the historian. At 1 P.M. dinner, under a mammoth tent upon the campus, followed by speeches and a good time generally. Former students will please send their names and Post Office addresses to the Principal, Rev. F. D. Blakeslee, D.D., East Greenwich, R. I., that circulars containing full information may be mailed them.

A terrific cyclonic wave, rain and hail storm passed over parts of Congress, Canaan, Chester, Milton, and Chippewa townships, Ohio, Sunday afternoon, doing a tremendous amount of damage. The storm swept a section three miles wide and 18 long. In Congress every pane of glass facing north and west, unprotected by blinds, was broken by the hailstones, which ranged in size from a pea to a hen's egg and fell to the depth of eight inches on the level. Entire orchards and strips of oak timber were blown down or twisted to the ground. Many houses, barns and outbuildings were unroofed or blown down. The hailstones were so large and fell with such force as to be driven through roofs covered with oak shingles. At Rowsburg hail fell to the depth of 8 to 12 inches on the level, and drifted to the depth of 32 inches. Hundreds of sheep were killed.

The Insurance Commissioner.

Gov. Brackett has done just what was to be expected he would do in the reappointment of Maj. Merrill as Insurance Commissioner.

Major Merrill may have been rather important, perhaps too much so, in his official position; there may be other attributes that have not pleased some of those who have fought so bitterly his reappointment, but for all this he has made an excellent Insurance Commissioner and deserved another official term. The malicious methods adopted by some of his opponents to prevent his nomination are likely to be continued against his confirmation. They should come to a like end. Major Merrill most assuredly did his duty in regard to the New York Life Ins. Co. His action which was a bold stand in the interest of the people in preference to the interest of a company which was without question issuing a very blind form of insurance policy, should be highly commended, and any other than a hearty confirmation will have a very unsavory taste to the people in the light of the past few weeks opposition to him.

The Lawrence Hospital.

In the TOWNSMAN of May 2d there was printed an article in regard to the May Breakfast, and assigning a possible reason for its discontinuance. The article was copied by Lawrence papers, and evidently somewhat distorted in its relation to the Lawrence City Hospital. A careful looking up of facts and a better understanding of the noble work of the ladies who manage the hospital leads us to correct any impression that may have been made that Andover does not appreciate and approve the good which the hospital accomplishes. That cases may have been refused admission there can be no doubt, but that refusal was for a good reason, and without the knowledge of the officers of the institution, there is also no doubt. The ladies of the Union Charitable Society have labored earnestly, and given a great deal of time to the establishment and maintenance of this work, and Andover has always taken pleasure, in private gifts and public, in having a part in it. We trust this interest has not ceased, for the need is still there, and Andover's part can belong to no other person or people. It is probable that much of the misunderstanding in regard to past Andover cases arose because of their being no one person in Andover to whom cases could be referred, and who was well informed as to hospital requirements and methods. Another effort should control the use of the means as well as the gaining of them, and we look to our town to do its share in this good work in future years as in the past.

ANDOVER NEWS.

For other Andover News see pages 1 and 8.

Mrs. Libbey and daughter have returned to town from their trip abroad.

The Niotus Club and Phillips Academy second nine will play on the grounds of the former to-morrow afternoon at 2 o'clock.

C. B. Mason is remodeling J. P. Butterfield's house on School St. and several modern improvements will be made, heating by steam, etc. Mr. Mason is also finishing a tenement for Ira Eastman out of the Phillips school building, which has been moved across the road.

Mr. Wheeler and family who have occupied the Phelps house for the past two summers, have arrived again to spend the season. Mr. Ward and wife have gone to their residence at Gloucester.

The Executive Committee of the Andover Christian Endeavor Union will meet at the home of Miss Anna B. Abbott, on Chestnut St., to-night at 8 o'clock.

Ex-Gov. Frederick Smyth of Manchester, N.H., has given to Phillips Academy a scholarship of one thousand dollars in the name of his wife, Mrs. Emma Lane Smyth. The income is for the benefit of students in the English Department, who need aid, who do not use tobacco, and who are ready to do manual labor to acquire an education. Mr. Smyth was a former pupil of Phillips.

Chief of police Cheever has posted the notices forbidding bathing in Haggetts Pond.

Ed. Jameson has left the employ of the Tyer Rubber Co., and will devote his time to the farm in West Parish.

The cantata "Queen Esther" is to be given in City Hall, Lawrence, next Monday night by singers from this town, North Andover, and Methuen. Geo. A. Tyler will again be King.

The children's festival at the Free Church this evening promises to be a pleasing entertainment. The programme includes "The Crowning of a May Queen," "Winding May Pole," instrumental and vocal music. Tickets, 10 and 20 cents.

A current conundrum:—Were the employees of the bank in their accustomed places at church last Sunday.

The Womans Relief Corps will attend services at the Chapel next Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock. Seats will be reserved for them and they will meet at the Chapel entrance. They will also attend the exercises on Memorial Day in a body.

William Halerom and John Weeks, formerly employed by Hardy and Cole, are working in Everett.

F. A. Dinsmore has been doing the renovating in the interior of the South Church.

The part of the item in our Ballardvale column last week, which stated that "the flag raised over the new school building May 10 was the first one purchased in town," is contradicted by one of our teachers, who says the flag on the South Centre School was purchased last December.

Professor Churchill preached at the North Church, Haverhill, last Sunday.

Rev. Reuben Thomas, D.D., of the Harvard Church, Brookline, preaches in the Seminary Chapel next Sunday. In the afternoon, at 8 o'clock, he preaches the annual sermon before the Gen. W. F. Bartlett Post, G.A.R., at the Chapel.

The dramatic and musical recital of Miss Sara Lord Bailey and pupils at City Hall, Lawrence, last Friday evening, was enjoyed by a number from this town, Pray furnishing conveyance. Miss Fannie Meldrum, one of Miss Bailey's pupils, rendered "The Sharpshooter's Miss" in an excellent manner, and was presented with a handsome basket of flowers by her friends.

Obituary.

As the bell was ringing the call to the Wednesday evening service, a mother in Israel, so constant in her attendance at these gatherings together, passed out from us to a higher and broader service. Mrs. Mary Blood was born in Wilmington, Mass., in 1822, was united with the Congregational Church in 1838, married in 1841 in Andover where she has since resided. Her husband, Marshall Blood, died in Sept. 1875, and there remains to mourn this double bereavement an only child her daughter Mary, with a brother, Mr. John Cornell, and a sister, Mrs. James Smith, both of Andover. Her friends, her neighbors, the South Church, the Sabbath School class, the association of praying mothers, all, in fact, who came within her circle of influence felt the charm of her beautiful daily life and the sweetness of her spirit. The unwavering shining of an inner light was the impression we carried from her presence, and in a life long acquaintance with the beloved friend we can recall no ill word spoken against her, for the measure she gave to others seems to have been returned to her, by all. The book of Proverbs contains in its closing chapter so true a picture of the type to which this gracious woman belonged that any other words seem to fail. "A woman that feareth the Lord, she shall be praised—let her own works praise her in the gates." Her life remains with us to inspire the generation coming on to take up the work where she lays it down. The mother hearts like Mrs. Blood's, Mrs. Berry's, Mrs. Towle's, and many another still with us whose feeble heart beats will cease all too soon for those they have lovingly served. How shall we replace these true spirits whose "price is far above rubies?" C. H. A.

At the New Stand.

Long before the regular hour for opening, Monday morning, a number of interested people gathered at the new bank building, the purpose evidently being to be the first depositor to hand in shakels over the new counter. As the ninth hour drew nigh, the number grew larger. The employees were on deck bright and early, and promptly on time the door swung open and the waiting crowds rushed in. E. Pike made a rush and threw down his pile, winning the race by a nose, and the career of the Andover National Bank in the elegant rooms set apart for its business in its new building, was begun in earnest.

Public School Notes.

A recent act of the Legislature requires that all public schools in the state devote the last regular session prior to Memorial day, or a portion thereof, to such exercises as will teach pupils to love their country and its free institutions. We believe that the Andover Public Schools will comply fully and cheerfully with the provisions of this important act, and will heartily engage in such patriotic exercises as are appropriate to the occasion.

Flag raising and Memorial Day exercises will be held in the Hall of the Central Grammar School on Thursday afternoon, May 29, at 2 o'clock. The parents and friends of the pupils are invited to be present, as a pleasing and patriotic programme will be presented.

Scotland School will raise a flag on Wednesday afternoon May 28, at 2 o'clock. Mr. B. F. Holt will present the flag and Supt. Halstead will respond on the part of the school. Then will follow exercises bearing upon the Flag and also commemorative of Memorial Day.

The School Committee will hold their next meeting at the Committees' Rooms, May 29, at 3.30 p. m.

The Teachers' Club will meet on Wednesday, May 28, at 4 p. m. The continuance of the "Question Box" will be an important feature of the meeting. As business of interest to all the teachers will come up at this time, a full attendance is expected.

The Holt District has fallen in line and soon will unfurl to the breeze a large 9x18 flag. Frye Village, Osgood, and Bailey contemplate the same thing in the near future.

We are glad to note that Miss Agnes C. Morrison is recovering from her illness, and within a few days will be able to resume her duties.

The Abbott Village School besides Memorial Day exercises will contribute floral offerings for decorating the soldiers' graves.

Memorial Exercises.

Gen. Wm. F. Bartlett Post 99 G. A. R. will meet at their Hall Sunday, May 25, at 2 p. m. to attend memorial service at the Chapel of the Theological Seminary. The Post will also assemble at headquarters Friday May 30th, at 8 o'clock A. M. The line will be formed at 8.30 and march to Memorial Hall, where the tablet will be decorated. At 8.45 the Post will again form and march to the Town Hall where the following programme will be carried out.

Music by Andover Brass Band; Singing by a chorus of sixty voices from the Grammar School, under the direction of Mr. Edward Butterworth; Prayer by chaplain of Post, Rev. Selah Merrill; singing by chorus; Oration by H. S. Robinson of Andover; Music, "America," by chorus and audience.

Immediately after these exercises the line will be formed in front of the Town Hall in the following order: Platoon of Police; Andover Brass Band; Walter L. Raymond Camp 111, Sons of Veterans; Gen. Wm. F. Bartlett Post 99 G. A. R.; Orator—chaplain, citizens. Route of procession: Main St. to Morton, Morton to School, School to South Cemetery.

After decorating graves at the South and Episcopal cemeteries the Post will return to the G. A. R. Hall, and take barges for the West Church, where the line will be formed, and march to the cemetery, and the usual exercises be performed there. The graves in the Chapel, Spring Grove, and Catholic cemeteries will be decorated by a detachment leaving the Town Hall at 7.30 A. M.

Persons having flowers marked for the above cemeteries, must leave them previous to that time with the committee who will be in attendance at the Town Hall. A cordial invitation is extended to all soldiers, sailors, and sons of veterans to take part in the exercises.

A list of the graves to be decorated in this town, on Memorial Day, are as follows:

Summary: Old South, 55; West, 39; Spring Grove, 16; Catholic, 17; Episcopal, 7; Chapel, 4; Total, 135.

Mrs. Dr. A. E. Dammers, Oculist.

Will be at the residence of R. M. Abbott, Summer Street, on Wednesday and Thursday, May 28th and 29th, at the request of the many persons who have expressed a wish to consult her. Also, any person who is suffering from failing sight or weak eyes. Eyes tested and fitted to rock crystal glasses.

Should be Appreciated.

We expect that on Memorial Day Gen. Wm. F. Bartlett, Post 99, and Walter L. Raymond Camp 111, Sons of Veterans, will make a very attractive appearance as they are to appear in their new uniforms made for them by the popular and well-known clothiers, W. H. Gile & Co., 226 Essex St., Lawrence. As this firm has a wide reputation of selling very fine ready-made clothing, we expect that under their careful supervision they will show the people of Andover the neatest uniforms ever worn by any organization of the kind and at a price which cannot but be appreciated, not only by the members of the above organization but by every citizen of Andover.

BALLARDVALE

Representative Greene has kindly presented your correspondent with a copy of the thirty-seventh annual report of the Secretary of the Massachusetts Board of Agriculture.

Mrs. Frye is visiting at her sister's in Wilmington.

The Drum Corps will do escort duty at the Firemen's picnic to-morrow.

The Young People's League of the M. E. Church met last evening at Mrs. Albert Willard's.

A series of meetings will be held at the M. E. Church, on special subjects, Monday evenings, May 25, June 1, June 15 and June 22.

The announcement of a series of eleven band concerts to be given here this summer through the generosity of Miss Helen C. Bradlee was hailed with delight by the music lovers of the place, and their name is legion. Miss Bradlee's liberality is so well known that comment in this instance would be superfluous; certainly there are few places that will be so well provided for. The Waverhill City Band will give the first five concerts, beginning Thursday evening, June 4, and after that successive Wednesday evenings.

Mrs. Ryan, of Lowell, is visiting Mrs. Jas. Boner.

The base-ball club will play the Centrals of Lowell to-morrow afternoon on the home grounds.

The J. P. Bradlee Engine Co. will entertain the members of Andover No. 1, Essex No. 4 of Lawrence, and other invited guests to-morrow afternoon at Shawheen grove. A clam bake will be one of the attractions.

Chas. Wombwell was elected President of the Craighead & Kintz Co. Mutual Aid Association; Wm. H. Sleath, vice-President; Wm. Clemens, Secretary; and Chas. Fischer, Treasurer. Each member contributes ten cents per week, and in event of sickness will receive $5 per week for a certain length of time. The surplus at the end of the year being divided among the members.

The Y. L. P. U. will run a strawberry festival and entertainment in Bradlee Hall next Wednesday evening. All are cordially invited. Admission ten cents.

Rev. F. D. Nute of Andover preached at the Union Church last Sunday in the absence of Rev. Mr. Butler.

The topmast to the flag staff has been run up and repainted.

The band stand will be fitted with incandescent lights for the benefit of the musicians.

The members of the engine company would not have the late contest create any feeling between them and the Andover Company for the world, but they still claim, in spite of the breakdowns, or claims of outsiders, that the Ballardvale machine will throw more water, and throw it farther than any machine in town.

NORTH ANDOVER.

Supt. Burnham reports that tramps are decreasing in numbers seeking shelter at the "farm" owing to the warm weather.

Messrs. Harry Alberzette, James M. Craig, and Miss Alice F. Harris were selected as a committee to prepare the entertainment for the next meeting of Wynona Lodge.

A new lawn-mower has been purchased with the prize money awarded last year to the Merrimack School for the best adorned yard.

Twenty-six names were added to and closed the charter-list of the recently instituted Wideawake Lodge, Monday evening. Hereafter, the names of candidates must be presented one week before they can be enrolled. An entertainment will be given the Juvenile Lodge at the Bradstreet School, June 7.

Capt. Reeves and Lieuts. Weil and Coan, with a command of 51 men, attended the funeral of the late Col. Francis A. Osgood, at Marblehead, Sunday. Sergt. Matthew Manchester acted as one of the bearers. Col. L. was one of the largest present, the general soldierly demeanor and respectful conduct was all that could be desired and very creditable.

Among the inventories filed, Monday, at the Probate Court, Salem, was that of the estate of the late Asa Angier of this town: $3,560.

The Y. P. S. C. E. holds its monthly Consecration meeting, Sunday evening.

Miss Emma Britton a young lady, who, during a few years' residence in town has, by a cheerful disposition, formed many pleasant friendships among the young people of the community, sailed from Boston Saturday morning on the Steamer Halifax, for her home in Upper Rawdon, N. S. On her departure, she received a variety of beautiful gifts expressive of the valued ties existing between herself and others. She goes, it is understood, to fulfill an "engagement," with the best wishes of friends that the approaching "happy event" may predict an unclouded future.

Director Macomber was pleased with the children's chorus, Friday evening, and desires the boys to take part in the Cantata, Monday evening at Lawrence.]

Mr. Michael Naylor one of the oldest residents of Union Village, died at his home on Beverly St. Saturday afternoon at 4 o'clock, aged 82 years. He was a native of Emondwick, Yorkshire, England, from whence he emigrated in 1858 residing first in Lawrence, afterward settling in town where he has lived for 22 years and gained a reputation for honesty and uprightness. The cause of death seemed due principally to the infirmities of advancing age, his illness lasting about a month. Wool-sorting was his occupation, and he worked about 12 years in the Pemberton mill, Lawrence. He was twice married, and leaves a widow and three children by his first wife—James of Keene, N. H.; John F., in Penn.; Mary, of Lawrence. He was free in his religious views and belonged to no organization. Funeral services were held at the house Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock, Rev. A. H. Amory of Grace Church, Lawrence, officiating. Messrs. H. A. Webster, John Hayworth, John Emmett, Louis Greenwood acted as bearers. Interment at Lawrence.

The spacious two story brick dwelling of Mr. John Driscoll on the Peters' estate, near Den Rock is nearing completion.

Mr. and Mrs. Lewis C. Wentworth have the sympathy of many friends in the loss of their infant daughter, Gertrude Elizabeth, whose death occurred at an early hour Tuesday morning. Funeral services were held at the house Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock, Rev. Geo. Walker officiating.

Wednesday the teachers of the Merrimack and Bradstreet Schools went visiting; Mr. A. L. Smith at the Phillips School, Boston, Misses Carleton, Quealey, Osgood, Bradford and Ballardvale; Misses Tucker and Hatch, Haverhill; Misses Sargent and Sanborn, Lowell; Miss Bailey, Malden; Miss Kelley, Lawrence.

Mrs. W. W. Baldwin was visiting friends in town, Wednesday.

Wm. Halliday, Jr., has been reappointed by the Selectmen a registrar of voters.

A supper Wednesday evening in the rooms of the Ladies' Charitable Union closed the social season of the society until September.

To avoid any unnecessary delay on the return of the procession from decorating the soldiers' graves, Memorial Day, the exercises at the flag raising at the J. H. S. will be of the simplest character. It is the idea of those having the matter in charge to have some worthy citizen offer the flag to the School Committee in behalf of the contributors, they in turn to present it to Mr. Kinley who will formally transfer it to the school. The singing of "America" will close the exercises.

"Esther," as presented at Odd Fellows Hall, Friday evening, under the direction of Mr. C. E. Macomber of Boston, was greeted by a large audience. The chorus singing was rendered by about thirty voices, and the home talent was represented by Miss Mary B. Sproul, as Mordecai's sister, and Messrs. Humphrey, Robinson, Wentworth, and Coleman, as guards. Solo's were given by the first two gentlemen mentioned. Mr. Humphrey also impersonated the herald. The triumphal march, participated in by thirty-two children led by Frank Bixby and Annie Christensen, was commendable. The part of the child of Haman and Zeresh was taken by Helen Josselyn. To compare the recent performance with the rendition of the same cantata at Merrimack Hall about seven years ago would be well nigh impossible, owing to the many difficulties arising from the lack of stage room, and the general arrangement of the apartments of the hall, unsuited to the best presentation of such pieces. The refusal of the curtain to work in an orderly manner caused merriment to the audience, if not to the artists. However, under the circumstances, the performance was fairly good. The larger portion of the credit of the cantata previously mentioned belonged to what was then our Episcopal choir.

"Workers for the Harvest" is the subject for the meeting of the Y. P. C. E. of the Methodist Church, Sunday evening.

At a meeting of the Overseers of Harvard College, in Boston, Wednesday forenoon, the board unanimously approved the re-appointment of Rev. Phillips Brooks.

By the virtue of a deed, and in consideration of the sum of $10,000, the J. Vincent Brown estate on Washington Square, Briggs and Webb Streets, Salem, has been transferred to Thomas F. Hunt, of that city, by Sarah and Hannah P. Kittredge, of town.

Mrs. Savana D. Ayer, a sister of the late Mrs. Eliza Sutton, died in Peabody, Tuesday, aged 82 years. She was the last survivor of the Jonathan Dustin family, highly respected, and one of the earliest members of the Unitarian Church.

In Juvenile Court, Monday morning, Faith Brown, whose case was continued over from last week, was given a cautionary lecture by the Judge and State Officer, concerning idle and disorderly habits. Promising to do better, the case was placed on probation for a term of four weeks.

The Y. P. M. L. S. S. will hold their next meeting Wednesday evening, May 28, instead of Memorial evening, the regularly appointed time.

Mr. Hiram F. Mills has removed from Lawrence to his slightly summer residence at the Centre.

"Esther" is to be presented in the City Hall, Lawrence, Monday evening, by a chorus consisting of concentrations of the talent of North Andover, Andover, Methuen, and Lawrence.

As a general thing the entertainments under the direction of the members of the Methodist Church and congregation show that much time and thought have been spent in preparing for them, and the one given by the Y. P. C. E., Wednesday evening was no exception. A goodly representation from the different churches in town composed the audience. The programme: song, by a chorus; reading, Miss Alberta Wright; singing, by Misses Merrow, Wright, Stone, and Clark; song, "I should like to," Frank Abbott; cantata, "May Festival," Gertie Smith, queen, with Lizzie Hodge and Gertie Hamlin, as maids of honor. Icecream was served during the intermission which followed, keeping the waiters busily employed, after which the programme was resumed. Singing, "Speed Away," Mr. Tufts and Mrs. John Bedell, whose sweet voice was well worth listening to; recitation, Alice Wallwork; vocal duet, Misses Merrow and Stone. The last number on the programme, "Liberty seeking a Home," was well sustained by Misses Mary Stone, Liberty; Alice Dillon, China; Etta Tattersall, India; E. Clark, Russia; Mary Dick, Scotland; Alberta Wright, Spain; S. Goff, Ireland; M. Hinzman, France; Abbie Ellis, Italy; Ethel Brainerd, Germany; Nellie Meserve, America. The young ladies were all dressed in appropriate costumes. The stage was built high, so that everything that was taking place thereon could be plainly seen from all parts of the room.

At the meeting of the Selectmen at the town farm office, Monday afternoon, the board granted a petition from the N. E. Telegraph and Telephone Co., asking permission to retain the present line, and continue a new line through Salem St., by Marblebridge Depot and the residence of Dane Foster, to the West Boxford line. Francis A. McKone was appointed a weigher of coal. The matter of a rifle range was talked over, and it was decided to have surveyor Hale, of Lawrence, measure the distance, preparatory to building the target. The spot selected is on land near the Alma House, belonging to the town, and the expense of the range will thus be lessened in a considerable degree.

Mr. John S. Wilkinson of Lawrence, who is constructing a double tenement house of seven rooms each, corner of Marblehead and Middlesex Streets, Union Village, expects to have the apartments ready for occupancy in about four weeks. It will be ready for plastering Saturday. Mr. Wilkinson contemplates building another house of the same pattern beside this one at an early date.

THE SPIRIT OF THE MORNING.

While Night yet holds her way in perfect peace,
When paling stars shine still in softest gray,
And sink to sleep 'neath light of coming day,
The spirit of Morn—the early wakened breeze—
Arises from her rest and nature frees:
Wings gently o'er in drowsy, careless way
And sings a murmurous, caressing lay
To hills and fields and softly answering trees;
While still all's wraps in fleecy, clinging mist,
Its ragged wreaths of loveliness are borne
And float on her strong pinions to be kissed
And taken to herself by smiling Morn;
She hails to sleep the war gods of the night,
And bears the rich hued banners of the light.

BURGLARS.

To Dolly Haviland the listless June day was inexpressibly dull, almost unbearable.

Here she was all alone in that big house, with no other company save her own morbid thoughts, and her brother Dick's chimpanzee, the relic of a deceased uncle, a sea captain, who had returned from his last voyage utterly broken down in health, and to mischievous Dick's great delight he found himself the possessor of Ripper, no his darling wish was gratified.

What else could any one expect but that the household was constantly kept in a state of furor and apprehension when the capricious Dick was so tireless in his teachings to master Ripper.

Mrs. Haviland, with the children, had departed early in the forenoon to spend the day with a lady friend, and, for some unaccountable reason, Norah insisted that dire necessity called her forth also.

It was now about the middle of the afternoon, and Dolly had returned to the sunny bay window which projected from the parlor, a favorite nook of hers.

Her ramble through the house had afforded her no relief from her restless thoughts.

Everywhere and in every nook and corner was prevalent the same oppressive silence, and she groaned aloud when she contemplated the hours she must put in before the return of her mother or Norah.

Even Ripper, she noticed, as she passed his bunk in the little alcove in the rear of the long hallway, was slumbering peacefully and serenely, appearing not at all desirous of indulging his mischievous and wicked pranks.

"He, even," Dolly murmured, nodding toward the innocent looking Ripper, "doesn't seem at all inclined to break this horrible stillness. I believe I should go mad if I had to endure this very long," she added, half in jest, half in earnest.

Returning to the nook in the bay window, she snugly ensconced herself in a willow rocker.

Catching up a book of her favorite author, she sought to find solace and oblivion in its pages, but even here there was not a jot of the interest that had always before enthralled her mind.

With an impatient mutter she allowed the volume to fall to her lap, and, clasping her hands above her head, leaned back, the personification of indolent ease.

"Ralph Everleigh," she mused—"quite a pretty name. I doubt, however, if he is the saint Harry has reported him to be. I suppose I should expect nothing more than the common run from the young men of his age. My Prince Raphael," with a nod at the book in her lap, "is an exception to the rule, but then this deviation exists only in imagination.

"Harry has graduated and is through with college. He wrote me that he would be home positively this week, accompanied by Ralph Everleigh, and here it is Friday already and there has been no sign of him. His letter planned such jolly times during his vacation, with his 'dear Ralph' as chaplain, and he even went so far as to warn me to be careful of my heart!" she concluded satirically.

And softly closing her big blue eyes, which, all unconsciously, had become unmistakably moist, she gave herself up to reflection.

Suddenly a noise overhead, as if of a stealthy footstep, seemed to straighten her little form; her orbs took on a feared look; her slim, nerveless hands became rigid as they fell to her lap, and all the bright color left her dimpled little face to be replaced by a deep pallor.

"Burglars!" Dolly involuntarily cried, rising unsteadily to her feet. "Oh, what shall I do?" her voice dying away in a painful wail.

At that instant there was a terrific rattle from the door bell, and hardly had its reverberations died away ere Dolly heard quickly retreating footsteps above her, as if the author of them had become apprehensive and had quitted the scene.

With quaking heart and tottering step she hurried to answer the ring.

And oh, how she did hope and pray that the caller might be her father, or Dick; and what if it should be Harry.

The very thought gave her strength, and a moment later she tremblingly pulled the bolts back, and hastily opening the door looked out.

It was not Mr. Haviland, nor Dick, nor was it Harry, but a tall, dark complexioned young man, with the prettiest of raven like hair.

But when Dolly realized that the caller was no acquaintance or relation of hers, her face assumed a disappointed look and the pallor deepened, while her tongue seemed to cleave to the roof of her mouth, and she could make no sound.

"What is it, miss?" he questioned in a rich, deep voice, as he noticed her embarrassment. "Can I be of any service to you?" he implored, quietly removing his hat.

"Oh, yes, sir; I don't know—that is—I think there is some one in the house," Dolly managed to stammer, at last loosening her tongue.

"Yes, I see; it is quite likely that there is some one in the house. I called to see Mr. Haviland—Mr. Harry Haviland," he returned, with an amused smile, not appearing to interpret her words or actions.

"You do not understand me, sir," not paying a bit of attention to his latter remark.

"Understand you?" he echoed; "Your words were quite lucid enough for me to comprehend them," regarding her with a strange look, and no doubt the thought entered his brain that he was in converse with a mild species of lunatic.

"But I am all alone in the house," she insisted, with pathetic entreaty, "and I have reason to believe there are burglars."

At that instant there was a tremendous noise in the upper part of the dwelling accompanied by the report of a pistol, which resounded throughout the house with ominous distinctness.

With a cry of distress Dolly flung back the door and would have been out in the open air had not the strong arm of the handsome stranger detained her, as he pushed his way in, saying, in a quiet, even tone:

"Be calm, miss; you have nothing to fear. I shall investigate."

So, suiting the action to his words, he proceeded to mount the stairs, but a hand on his arm stopped him.

"Please don't, sir," the young girl pleaded. "They will hurt you, shoot you—kill you, perhaps."

"Have no fear as regards my safety; I am quite able to take care of myself," he assuredly replied.

"I beg of you, sir, not to risk your life in this manner. Go to the police station and get an officer."

The last was delivered with such pleading pathos that the young fellow was half inclined to follow her wishes, but a second pistol shot at that moment quickly defined his purpose in the negative.

Turning from Dolly he hastened up the stairs to the portion of the house from whence came the shot.

Dolly hastily followed him, and as she made the top landing in the third story and looked down the hall, she saw her opportune caller halt before the door of her brother Dick's room, from which strange sounds proceeded.

She had taken but a few steps when the stranger flung open the door and rushed into the apartment.

Simultaneously there came from within the most horrible cries, screams, then another pistol shot, followed by the sound of breaking glass and what appeared a slight scuffle.

Dolly's senses then deserted her, and with a shrill scream she fainted away.

After a few moments she threw off her unconsciousness to find herself reclining upon a couch in the sitting room, and her ears were greeted with a couple of the heartiest laughs imaginable.

Glancing up to the faces of those above her she recognized her brother Harry and her handsome acquaintance of a few moments before.

Both were looking down at her with amused countenances, and Dolly at once divined that something unusual had occurred.

Rising to a sitting posture, she regarded them with a strange mixture of wonder and perplexity, a confused look creeping into her eyes.

Glancing up into her brother's face,

she said, rather petulantly:

"What is the meaning of all this, Harry? When did you come? I do believe this 'is some trick to place me in this undignified position, to say the least of it," and her sweet red lips assumed a decided pout of disapproval.

Stooping down, Harry Haviland lovingly kissed the pout from his sister's lips, and said in a composed voice:

"No, my dear Dolly, I assure you it is entirely inconsistent with my nature to indulge in such pranks. You shall see in a moment. Meanwhile Dorothy, allow me to acquaint you with Mr. Ralph Everleigh."

And Ralph Everleigh, the most timely caller, bowed and quietly took the waxen little hand extended to him so shyly, while its owner could only stammer and blush and hang her head in confusion.

This handsome fellow, with such curling locks of glossy black hair, a well trained mustache of the same hue, and big black orbs to augment the classic contour of the noble looking face—he Ralph Everleigh—he of whom her brother had so often fondly spoken.

Dolly could scarcely credit it, and the belief at once formed itself in her mind that the eulogies of Harry when speaking of Ralph Everleigh were not in the least exaggerated—on the contrary were only half advanced.

"It seems, however," continued Harry Haviland, "that some unfortunate accident has completely forestalled me in my presentation. I was lucky enough to arrive on the scene at the culmination of a most tragic act in the drama, and just in time to effect the escape of the hero from a decidedly unpleasant contretemps, and was so fortunate as to also be of service to the heroine," and with a merry twinkle first at Ralph Everleigh and then at Dolly, he added, "But allow me to present to your gaze the scene of the recent tragedy."

Turning, he left the room, followed by Ralph and Dolly.

Repairing to Dick's room, they all entered, and such a scene as was presented to the sight of the trio it is almost impossible to depict.

Littered indiscriminately about the floor were bits of glass, bric-a-brac, the remains of what was once an exceedingly handsome pair of vases, a pillow here and some bed clothes there, chairs overturned and scattered over the floor were numerous boyish trifles and trinkets, while tied to the leg of bedstead, and viewing the rufus with a complacent and self satisfied gaze, was Ripper himself.

The ludicrousness of the strange scene seemed to at once strike the astounded trio, and the heartiest of laughs were in place for the next few minutes.

When the mirth had subsided somewhat, explanations followed.

It seems that Harry and Ralph had each arrived on different trains, and through some inadvertence or misunderstanding had missed each other, and so without further ado had repaired immediately to the Haviland house.

Ralph had arrived first, as has already been shown; and just as the third pistol shot rang throughout the house Harry had appeared.

Ripper, it was obvious, had grown tired of his unwonted inactivity, and so had proceeded to scour the house on a tour of investigation.

Entering Dick's room, he at once made himself at home, and, in nosing around, ran across a revolver which Dick had left loaded since the Fourth of July.

With human like perspicacity he had discovered the means of discharging it, and was hugely enjoying himself when Ralph Everleigh rushed in and put a stop to his ruinous amusement.

He was just in season to perceive Ripper, evidently angered beyond endurance by the belligerent attitude assumed by himself in the mirror, cast the revolver with unerring aim at the reflection, to the utter destruction of the mirror.

Descending to the lower floor, they were in time to greet Mr. and Mrs. Haviland, who had returned together, and when at last Dick had made complete the family circle the scene of the ruin was once more viewed and the story repeated.

This was the last straw that broke the cord which bound the unimpressible Dick and his protegee such close friends, and then and there Ripper's fate was inexorably decided upon.

"It's no use; I've stood this long enough. He's got to go!" and Mr. Haviland was firm in his purpose.

The next day Ripper went to brighten the home of some other unsuspecting victim, and you may be positive his departure was followed by very slight regret.

A week later the family departed for the mountains, accompanied by Ralph Everleigh, who had long before decided to make one of the party, and had no such previous intention been thought of, he could hardly have resisted the importunities of Dorothy Haviland's sweet face.

And such delightful times as were indulged in for the next couple of months could scarcely have failed to produce any other result than that which followed.

Harry Haviland saw it all, and a look of complete satisfaction lighted up his face as he observed how devoted and solicitous to each other's comfort they were.

After all, it was nothing more than he had hoped for, and planned.

During a ramble through a picturesque glen one early autumn day Dolly declared that she must have a rest—that she was completely fatigued. Making room for her companion beside her on a moss grown boulder, she seated herself.

A lengthy silence followed, when suddenly the young man blurted out:

"Miss Haviland—Dolly, we return to the city on Monday."

"Yes, so papa says," she returned, blushing rosily at the familiar manner in which he had addressed her.

"This will be the last of our delightful rambles," he said, deprecatorily.

"Yes," with a long drawn sigh.

"Dolly!" he cried, passionately, seizing her trembling little hand in his own, while he endeavored to look in the eyes which so persistently avoided his gaze.

The only reply was another sigh, and then a deeper flush.

"Dolly," he repeated in a low, soft tone, which thrilled her strangely, "why must this be the last of these rambles? Can you not give me your hand as confidently as you have already permitted me to direct you, and say that you will trust me to lead you in a ramble that will never cease—a ramble through life, till the grave parts us?"

She understood him. It was an impossibility to misinterpret the yearning earnestness both in his words and his looks, and with a sigh of the most supreme contentment she answered him in one little word:

"Yes."

And when the May sunshine and flowers come again Mrs. Ralph Everleigh will preside over a home of her own.—Victor Vigor in Philadelphia Telephone.

Those Beautiful Eyes.

The maire of a town on the frontier had, in accordance with the recent regulations, to make out a passport for a rich and highly respectable lady of his acquaintance, who, in spite of a slight disfigurement, was very vain of her personal appearance. His native politeness prompted him to gloss over the defect, and, after a moment's reflection, he wrote among the items of personal description: "Eyes dark, beautiful, tender, expressive; but one of them missing."—Figaro.

The Honesty in Women.

Did you ever notice that when a woman gets on to a horse car and the conductor fails to collect her fare she invariably hands it to him as she leaves? A man under the same circumstances will, in nine cases out of ten, quietly slip his little nickel into his pocket, and, saying nothing about it, mentally pat himself on the back for his shrewdness.—New York Journal.

THE WOMAN OF THE FUTURE.

She Will Belong to Combinations to Raise the Price of Her Labor.

Combination among skilled women workers is increasing every day, though slowly, for women are naturally conservative, and they do not readily accept the principle of unionism. They have, many of them, suffered sorely from the effect of strikes, and though they realize that prolonged combination, if carried out consistently, must improve their position and in the long run raise their wages, never lose sight of the long period during which their employment must cease till their ultimate demands are conceded. Added to which they do not forget the bitter feelings aroused—the breach between employer and servant—and, above all, that in a struggle such as a long strike must always be it is only the strong who win; the weak ones go to the wall.

All these things make women shy and slow to join a trade union, while the introduction of foreign labor in England and the increasing demand, on account of their cheapness, for foreign goods have made a much deeper impression on their minds than is generally admitted. The skilled woman worker has, however, the security of knowing that she can take up her stand with a greater chance of success, for with the best women workers, as with the men, the supply is rarely in excess of the demand. And were technical instruction given to women a good deal of the better class work they cannot do would be carried out in England, instead of being executed by French women, who are trained for it in the many technical schools which exist for women in France.

In Scotland the question has been warmly espoused by the women who work in Glasgow and Dundee, and the prospect of combining for the unskilled as well as the skilled workers is very much more promising than in England. Scotch women are more independent and self reliant, added to which, though the pay is bad, their surroundings are less deteriorating than those of the London women, and their dwellings are better and rents are lower.

The rapid increase of the population and the influx of people from the country to the large towns make the problem of how to deal with our skilled female labor every year more difficult. The education hitherto given to women in England is purely intellectual, and when a girl has passed the standard she at once goes into the ranks of the unskilled. If she can give time she may be apprenticed and learn a trade, but the number of girls who can afford to do that is getting fewer every day. The few shillings a girl can earn at once is too important an addition to the family income to be rejected, and as the majority of them marry while practically children, neither the necessity of being apprenticed nor of joining a union appeals to them.—English Illustrated.

Before Marengo.

Bourrienne tells us how the First Consul, in his cabinet in Paris, traced the march to Marengo and laid his finger on the spot in the map where he would fight and defeat the Austrian army—a prodigy of calculation, if we recollect the circumstances:

"When he had stationed the enemy's corps and drawn up the pins with red heads on the points where he hoped to bring his own troops, he said to me: 'Where do you think I shall beat Melas?' 'How do I know?' 'Why, look here, you fool! Melas is at Alessandria with his headquarters. There he will remain until Genoa surrenders. He has in Alessandria his magazines, his hospitals, his artillery and his reserves. Crossing the Alps here' (pointing to the great Mont St. Bernard) 'I shall fall upon Melas, cut off his communications with Austria, and meet him here in the plains of Scrivia.'"—Temple Bar.

The development of electric welding has naturally led to the invention of devices by which heat may be applied in a somewhat similar manner in other processes in the arts. Professor Elihu Thomson has devised an apparatus by which the heating power of the current is utilized in the process of soldering the covers of tin cans.

Another One on the Poets.

"The trouble with our poets," said Blinks, "is that they do not live well enough."

"Yes," replied Jinks, "our poetry does need something of an epic cure."—Washington Capital.

RELIGIOUS NEWS AND NOTES.

Rev. F. W. Greene preached at the West Church Sunday morning on the text Eph. 1:3-6—"The counsel of the Father concerning the church." In the evening his text was Titus 2:10, "Adorning the doctrine of Christ in all things."

Rev. Mr. Wilson at the Free Church, Sunday morning, spoke on the subject of "Sabbath Breaking." In the evening a union prayer meeting of the Y. P. S. C. E. and church was held.

At the morning service at the South Church, Sunday, the pastor spoke on the text Matt. 10:14—"Jesus said suffer little children to come unto me and forbid them not; for of such is the kingdom of heaven." The subject in the evening was "Buddhism," text Acts 17:26-27.

Rev. James W. Bixler of Haverhill preached at the Chapel last Sunday, his texts being James 1:12 and Ps. 121:1.

The sermon of Rev. Mr. Jernigan at the Baptist Church, Sunday morning was founded on Prov. 13:15.

Prof. Tucker will supply the pulpit of the Kirk St. Church, Lowell, for three months beginning June 22, while Rev. Dr. Dana is absent in Europe.

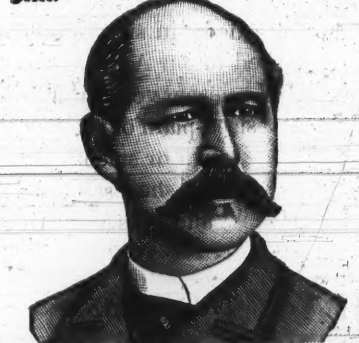

It is reported that Henry M. Stanley is to marry Miss Dorothy Tennant of London, who is young, artistic, and much admired. Miss Tennant lives in Richmond Terrace, Whitehall. She is a daughter of the late Charles Tennant, and has become well known through her clever pictures in the academy and other galleries. The marriage will probably take place early in June.

WHY NOT use the best. The best is the cheapest. Try World Soap, it always gives satisfaction.

Have you a Pittsburgh, Rochester, Duplex, or a Student Lamp?
Do they work satisfactorily?
Do your Lamp Chimneys break?

You get the wrong sort!
The right ones are the "PEARL GLASS," made by Geo. A. Macbeth & Co., Pittsburgh, makers of the celebrated "Pearl-top" lamp-chimney, which have given universal satisfaction.

"Perfect Satisfaction,"

Is the verdict of every one using Ayer's Cherry Pectoral for Colds, Coughs, Bronchitis, Pneumonia, and all Lung troubles. Unlike cod-liver oil, and many other specifics, Ayer's Cherry Pectoral is agreeable to the taste and leaves no ill effects.

"I cannot say too much in praise of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral," writes Mr. Robert F. McKeen, of New Groton, N. J. "I have used it in my family, many years, and always with perfect satisfaction."

"Ayer's Cherry Pectoral is truly the Most Popular Remedy of the age, rendering full satisfaction in every instance."—Thornton Edwards, Lonely Dale, Ind.

F. L. Morris, M. D., Brooklyn, N. Y., says: "Your medicines have been satisfactory to me throughout my practice; especially Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, which has been used in great quantities by my patients, one of whom says he knows it saved his life."

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral,

Prepared by Dr. J. C. Ayer & Co., Lowell, Mass. Sold by all Druggists. Price $1; six bottles, $5.

Abbott Village.

Mr. Jas. Ramsay has gone to work in East Boston.

The following team will play against the 2d Albions on the home grounds to-morrow at 2 p.m. Capt. W. Greig, L. A. Dane, T. Wilkie, T. Wrigley, J. Smith, J. B. Callum, G. C. Lyle, J. Harris, C. MacDermott, W. Warden, W. Coutts.

The game next Friday (Decoration Day) with the Somervilles will be an all day game, commencing at 11 o'clock sharp. The Somervilles put up a very strong game against the Longwoods, two weeks ago, and some good playing may be expected. Andover will have out her usual team, with one additional—twelve men playing on each side.

Andover visited Medford Saturday and engaged the team of that name. The Medfords were short-handed and two of the Andovers fielded as subs. The Andovers batted first, Porter and Saunders opening against the bowling of McCarthy and Haigh. Runs came slowly, until Bruce joined Porter. The former hit out freely and had a very fine drive for 3. McCarthy bowled him after scoring 13 runs. Low and Greig did some good batting, the former having 9, and the latter 7 runs. At this juncture Porter, who had been playing a steady game, received a bad blow over the eye from a bowled ball. He retired with a well earned 21 run including a nice hit to leg for 7. The inning closed for 70 runs. Henry bowled best for the Medfords, but the fielding was weak. It was evident from the start of the Medford inning that they intended to make a draw game, time being wasted without cause. The bowling of Bruce and Kydd was however too good, and the last wicket fell for 41 runs. Of this number McCarthy had 10 not out and 'Rogers' 7. Bruce bowled in grand style securing 7 wickets for 17 runs. Andover gave a miserable exhibition of fielding otherwise the score would have been smaller. The following is the full score:

—EAT—
Perfect Bread

Nature's Great Vital Energy Recuperator. Wheat, a natural food, contains all the fifteen elements found in the human body, and chemical analysis shows all the natural foods, vegetable and animal, contain these same fifteen elements, and nearly in the same proportion as the human body. Deficiency of vitalizing elements is the trouble with fine flour.

Facts are Stubborn Truths. FLOUR is the only impoverished food used by mankind—impoverished by the withdrawal of the tegumentary portion of the wheat, leaving the internal or starchy portion. See the facts! In chemistry we find that in 100 parts of substance (See Analysis)—
Wheat has an ash of 17.7 parts;
Flour an ash of 4.1 parts,—an impoverishment of over three-quarters.
Wheat has 8.2 parts of Phosphoric Acid.
Flour 2.1 parts of Phosphoric Acid,—an impoverishment of about three-quarters.
Wheat has 0.6 Lime, and 0.6 Soda,—
Flour 0.1 Lime, and 0.1 Soda,—an impoverishment of five-sixths Lime and Soda each.
Wheat has Sulphur 1.5; Flour has no Sulphur.
Wheat has Sulphuric Acid 0.5; Flour has no Sulphuric Acid.
Wheat has Silica, 0.3; Flour no Silica.
WHEAT MEAL is a perfect food for Infants and Children, containing all the material for a strong and vigorous constitution.

It is a Positive Cure for Constipation. It is a PERFECT FOOD for the Dyspeptic, as it is in the best condition for the gastric juices to act upon, furnishing the power to digest, feeding the nerve centres, etc. For the Brain Worker it is unsurpassed, containing all the phosphatic properties which the active brain demands, and without which it is incapable of endurance.

"Dogs fed by Magendie (vide Kirk and Page's Physiology) on flour died in forty days; other dogs fed on wheat meal bread flourished and grew." The three-fourths impoverishment of the mineral ingredients proved fatal to the first. Where phosphorus, the physical element of vitality, is wanting in food, the same will be wanting in the system, and the body will come short in vital energy, or the power of endurance. Thus the wasteful expense of living on the basis of superfine flour is enormous and foolish.

THE ARLINGTON WHEAT MEAL IS RECOMMENDED BY ALL PHYSICIANS, HAS BEEN ON THE MARKET FOR THE PAST 16 YEARS, BEARING THE HIGHEST REPUTATION. Being ground from the best pure wheat, it furnishes to the public the means of supplying a PERFECT FOOD. Its quality as it leaves the Arlington Mills is guaranteed to be of superlative excellence and purity. Packed in barrels and half barrels. Ask your Grocer for it, and use no other.
